

The move to community mailboxes

Canada Post is converting about four million addresses that still receive door-to-door delivery to community mailboxes over the next five years. This is a key element of the company's plan to modernize the postal service and return to financial self-sustainability.

The move to community mailboxes will increase security by putting nearly all mail and parcels delivered by Canada Post under lock and key. It will also reduce costs as delivering to the door costs significantly more than to a community mailbox.

The following postal codes are currently scheduled for conversion in 2026 or 2027. These anticipated conversion dates are subject to change.

Canada Post is notifying residents of the upcoming change to their mail delivery, and will keep them informed every step of the way.

Canada Post's Delivery Accommodation Program

This program provides free support to help residential customers with functional limitations access their mail and parcels. It offers accommodations that make mailboxes easier to use, such as sliding trays, Braille features or assigning a more accessible compartment. In some cases, weekly home delivery may be provided on a seasonal, temporary or permanent basis.
